Dutchess Bus Line Asks Franchise Red Hook to Here

A Poughkeepsie bus line has petitioned the Public Service Commission in Albany for authorization to establish a temporary bus service between points in Dutchess County, starting at Red Hook, to Kingston.

A public hearing on the petition of Empire Bus Lines Inc., 186 Smith Street, Poughkeepsie will be held before Examiner Isadore E. Crade, Wednesday, Nov. 8 at 10 a, m. in the commission's office, 55 Elk Street, Albany, The service would include stops along the route including Rhinebeck and Rhinecliff. Empire plans a schedule to make connections at Trailways Bus Terminal with New York City buses.

The hearing was originally scheduled to be held at Ulster County Court House but was changed to Albany in an announcement today by Samuel R. Madison, secretary of the Public Service Commission.

JEWS IN RUSSIA Captain Joshua L. Goldberg, who for many years was the leading rabbi in the chaplain corps of the United States Navy, spent some time reently in Soviet Russia. Chaplain Goldberg, generally known as "Josh," came to the United States in 1917 and immediately enlisted in the Army where he learned English; in World War II he made an enviable record in the Navy. Besides English, he speaks Russian, Hebrew, Yiddish, French and other languages

He did not go to Russia to make a study of conditions there, but speaking various languages and being of Russian origin, he was able to probe deeply into the life of the people who interested him most, the Jews, among whom he is respected as a rabbi. In an article in "Look" he discusses his experiences and the conclusions he has

"While the Jews in the Soviet Union are of ficially recognized as a distinct 'nationality,' their national life is devoid of any institutional or organizational expression. There are no Jewish schools, publishing houses, historical research or folklore institutes, although other Soviet nationalities enjoy these facilities as a matter of course

"Religiously, too, the Jews find themselves at distinct disadvantage. Other religions in Russia have regained some status in recent years; the Jews still have none. The few synagogues in some major cities are too small to accommodate Russia's Jews. The Jews are afraid to go to the synagogues lest their children lose their jobs; afraid to complain, lest they be accused of being counter revolutionaries; afraid to ask for a visa o join families in Israel lest they be accused of participating in Zionist-capitalistic conspiracies fraid to communicate with relatives in the United States lest they be dubbed potential spies They have become a community of whisperers in kingdom of fear.

Rabbi Goldberg says: "Being a Jew under the czars was only a disability-not a calamity. Within these restrictions the Jews developed a rich intellectual, cultural traditional religious material and educate rabbis judges and teachers, provided outstanding lead-

By Nadine Seltzer | Present Is Time To Tune Up Car, Auto Club Advises

Fall's relatively mild weather is no reason to put off a winter tune-up of your car, the Automobile Club of New York today

"Those who are prone to wait until the last minute need only check last year's calendar to see how suddenly winter can arrive," George Bartisch, manager of the auto club's emergency road service department,

He recalled that on last December 12 - after two months, of mild fall weather - sudden snow and sub-freezing temperatures resulted in deadened batteries and frozen radiators for thousands of tardy car owners. "Motorists who don't have their cars winterized early are merely flirting with possible lengthy repairs and needless delays at crowded service stations on those first frosty mornings,

Undoubtedly the emergence of the villain who is sick, not evil, is part of the medium's effort to avoid scenes of highly criticized violence; to substitute the threat of violence for mayhem, fighting and murder. But they are loading in mental illness so heavily, this pattern can quickly become something of a bore.

In the first three shows of "87th Precinct," the menances were some kinds of nut or something: a lady-killer with a penchant for having his flame of the moment tattooed; an unbalanced woman determined to kill in revenge for her husband's execution, and an out-and out psycho who liked to

Loop Moguls May Have to Decide When to Play Tilt

By ED PALLADINO Freeman Sports Staff

There is a controversy started in the DUSO League and Poughkeepsie High School is squarely in the middle of it.

Last Saturday, the Pioneers were scheduled to host Kingston in Poughkeepsie and Coach Sam J. Kalloch postponed the game before noon because of the rain. Needless to say, it was the only contest in the area which was postponed because of wet grounds.

Since the game was on Pough-keepsie's field, Kalloch's decision had to stand. He wanted the contest replayed Monday of this week but Kingston coach Bill Burke refused and for a very

The Woodstock Planning Board and its consultants

This public report, illustrated with colored slides, maps, and charts, will show in considerable detail the facts about Woodstock as it now is. The material has been gathered from many sources and supplemented by extensive work in the field. It will include composition of our present population, the character of the terrain and soil, the traffic pattern, drainage areas, present land use, and many other facts about Woodstock which will form the basis for future preparation of a growth Hurley

ity and will reveal some of the UNICEF Pennies Buy

This progress report is the first tangible result of a public meeting held last May at which ning expert, outlined the value of preparing a growth plan. It was at that meeting that the fund-raising campaign was launched. This resulted in the raising of $20,000 for the techpare such a plan. At that meetng the various steps in preparng a plan were outlined and on October 24 will be presented the first step, which is the gathering and arranging of basic information, without which no valid planning can be done. J. C. van Rijn will preside and Martin F. Comecu will be moderator of the question and answer period following presentation of the progress report.
